

About the Atharva Sheersha Havan

The Atharvasheersha Havan is a set of Vedic Mantras, which aptly describe the greatness, and glory of Lord Ganapati. The Atharvasheersha Havan is an elaborate puja which commences with Ganesh Puja, Punyahavacham, Nandishraddha, Grahmukh and the invocation of Agni, the God of Fire. The team of priests performing this ceremony recite the Atharvasheersha Havan in rhythmic unison while offerings are consigned to Agni Devata i.e. the God of Fire. The blessing of all the planets and planetary Gods are initially invoked and then an offering of Modaks (a delicacy which is a perennial favorite with Lord Ganapati) is consigned to Agni Devata. The blessing of the Kshetrapal i.e. the God of the site from where such puja is being performed is also invoked by making a sacrificial offering. After the puja the holy water, which is fortified by the recitation of several mantras, is then sparkled on the devotee and his family who are performing the said puja. Prayers are offered to God seeking his blessing in culminating any difficulties controlling the devotees. After the puja, the host devotee honours the Brahmin Priests performing this Havan and they in turn shower choicest blessings upon the host devotee and his family members. There is also a luncheon hosted for the host devotee and his family members and for the Brahmin priests performing this havan.
